1. On 1 May 1951, the observatory at Warnemuende was transferred to Kuehlungsborn, under the direction of Professor Falkenberg.
2. In the future, the station at Warnemuende will be used solely as a weather reporting station for shipping. The director will be Dr. Knepple and his deputy, the meteorologist, Rohloff.
3. The building formerly used by the Meteorological Institute in Schwerin will now be used for weather reporting. The telephone net between the central observatory at Potsdam and all weather reporting stations functions without noise or interruption.
4. Cooperation between the weather reporting service and the sea police is to be closer.
